

Photo Booth Challenge: Can you tell a story in four photographs?

The S Service time machine in Agent Starling: Operation Baked Beans isn't just a time machine, as Gluteus Maximus is excited to discover:

"It's me!" Gluteus shouted, waving around a set of passport photos. "Look, four little pictures of me! Look at that perfect bone structure, that fine Roman nose. What a handsome beast."

An old-fashioned photo booth like the one in the story takes four photographs, one after the other, capturing four different moments in time.

THE CHALLENGE:

Can you use four individual snapshots in time to tell a complete story?

How will you show your character's feelings without using descriptions or speech?

How can you show what's going on behind the scenes?

What visual clues can you use to help your 'reader' fill in the blanks between photos?

Now try telling the same story using ONLY words. Can you describe each photograph/scene in enough detail for someone else to draw them?

Try swapping descriptions with a friend (who hasn't seen your original photos) and see how your results compare!