

DEAR ME

'...This is the hardest letter I've ever had to write—I'm on my tenth attempt already!

*I'm trying my best to picture you as you are now, reading this [...]
Do you still do that funny thing with your eyebrows when you're excited?
Does your hair still curl into a perfect 'S' at the back of your neck? Do you still like mashed banana sandwiches? Are you still ticklish behind your knees?*

There are lots of important letters in Bauble, Me and the Family Tree – letters to people who mean the world to the writer and yet are also strangers to them.

Can you think of some examples?

THE CHALLENGE:

Write a letter to your future self.

Think about what age you'll be when you get your letter. How will that affect the things you choose to write about?

What would you like to ask about life in the future? Is there anything you don't want to know?

What would you like your future self to remember about your life now?

What can you teach them?
